Issuer Sponsored Holdings

Are maintained by the Share / Unit Registry on behalf of the Issuer of your shares.

ASX Code

To convert your Issuer Sponsored holding we need to know the ASX code and the number of units you would like us to convert.

Securityholder Reference Number

A unique number that identifies you as an Issuer Sponsored holder with a listed company. A SRN usually starts with the letter 'I' eg. I00012345678.

If you hold shares in more than one company and choose to be Issuer Sponsored, you will have a different SRN for each shareholding.

Related definitions

CHES stands for Clearing House Electronic Sub-register System. The CHES Settlement Facility is a computerised share registry and settlement system operated by the ASX Settlement Pty Ltd (ASX Settlement), a subsidiary of the ASX. CHES records an account's share ownership via the ASX's computer-based share and settlement transaction system. An account's security holdings are recorded against their HIN and a statement is sent out to their registered address.

mFund refers to managed funds admitted to the mFund Settlement Service. This service uses CHES, ASX's electronic settlement system, to automate buying and selling units in admitted managed funds through brokers including nabtrade.

Holder Identification Number (HIN) is a unique number you are issued when you are CHES/Broker Sponsored. Your HIN can register multiple securities. A HIN Starts with the letter X, and is followed by 11 numbers eg. X00123456789.
